About the The CEOCOR 2021 congress

CeoCor, founded in 1956, is an international scientific non-profit association dealing with corrosion and protection of pipes and pipeline systems.

With most of the European countries as members, CEOCOR brings together hundreds of specialists. Members include water, gas and oil distribution and transportation companies, universities and research centers, specialists, designers and producers of pipes, coatings and cathodic protection systems. The members are primarily high-level technical specialists in their various fields relating to corrosion and protection of buried pipelines.

The congress consists of about 40 high level technical presentations, working group meetings, as well as a technical exhibition.

CEOCOR Commission 1

Deals with the interaction between transported or stored water and metallic or cement-based materials. Such interaction may lead to the deterioration of the materials themselves and/or deterioration in the qualities of the transported water.

CEOCOR Commission 2

Deals with external corrosion and cathodic protection against corrosion, mainly for water, oil and gas pipe- lines and relevant infrastructures. AC and DC stray currents and electrical interferences are in the field of competences of this Commission.

Exhibitions & sponsorships

Exhibitors are duly invited to showcase products and solutions for the corrosion and cathodic protection industry. The selected location will guarantee the ideal conditions for the exhibitors and the program and scheduled activities will provide the best possible climate for the meeting between professionals and vendors.

Limited sponsorships still available
